Designed by the City of Helsinki's first city gardener, Svante Olsson, Kanavapuisto Park was completed in the early 20th century. The park has a total area of 2,400 m<sup>2</sup> and it is part of a nationally notable built cultural environment. When it came to park planning, Olsson considered it important to include characteristically different types of areas in his parks so as to offer varying views and surprises to visitors. He also put a great deal of emphasis on the landscapes viewable from the park and having many different species of plants. The stairs in Kanavapuisto lead to Uspenski Cathedral, the main church of the Orthodox Parish of Helsinki and the Orthodox Church of Finland. The park's vegetation is largely original and sensitive, so we ask that you please stay on the marked pedestrian routes and respect the spirit of the park.

The Old Market Hall of Helsinki has been serving customers since 1889 as the oldest of the city's market halls. In the 19th century, food trade in Helsinki took place primarily in market squares. A covered hall made the hygienic handling of food easier and prevented trade from being disrupted by bad weather. Helsinki's Old Market Hall was designed by architect Gustaf Nyström, who drew inspiration for the design from the major culinary cities of Europe.

Even today, the vendors of Helsinki's Old Market Hall offer visitors an opportunity to take a culinary journey full of local delicacies at a historic trading venue of maritime Helsinki.

See you at the Old Market Hall!
